

Social Media Reflection

Look at the status updates and comments that have been posted around the room. In the space below, write the one that had the most “likes.”

What was your personal favorite among the status updates?

Did you end up “liking” the same content that others also tended to “like,” or did you have more unusual taste?

Based on the most popular (most “likes”) posts that you see around the room, what sort of content seems to appeal most to people?

What sort of content are you personally most like to “like” and to comment on?

What kind of content do you like to put in your own status updates?
