

Safari Tales Story Creation- Peer review

The purpose of this peer review is to give your classmates feedback on their abilities to incorporate details and descriptions in a story. While issues dealing with grammar and vocabulary are important and may be addressed, they should not be the focus of this discussion.

Step 1: Your partner will read his or her story to you. As you listen, write down descriptions of the animal or its activities that you find to be impressive. Use the space below to record those thoughts.

Step 2: Now, read your partner's work silently. Write two compliments and one recommendation for improvement below. Be sure to support both the compliments and the recommendation with evidence from your partner's work.

Compliments	Proof from work

Recommendation	Proof from work

Step 3: Discuss similarities and differences with your partner. Document your discussion below.

Based only on content, explain what your stories have in common.
Based only on content, explain how your stories differ.
What are some strengths that both of you have in common?
What are some areas for improvement that both of you have in common?
How might you use your differences and similarities to improve your writing in the future? What ways can you support one another?
