

Brainstorming Worksheet

We all know that our identities are complex. They are the collection of many physical, mental, emotional, interest-based, and societal components. Using the concept of identity as the branching off point, create a mind map of at least three components of identity that most interest you. Use the space below to create your mind map. An example has been provided.

